The advocates of free hides were overwhelmed in the Senate yesterday.

By a vote of 46 to 30 the amendment reported from the Finance Committee by Senator Aldrich restoring the Dingley rate of 15 per cent ad valorem on hides was adopted after a long fight. The House bill placed hides on the free list.

The vote on the adoption of the Finance Committee's amendment was taken shortly before adjournment at 7 o'clock. Four amendments to the paragraphs were offered by Senators McLaurin, Stone, and Cummins.

The first vote was taken on an amendment offered by Mr. McLaurin, who proposed to add to the committee amendment a proviso that all hides of whatever character or weight shall be dutiable at 15 per cent ad valorem.

This was a blow at a Treasury decision which held that hides less than twenty-five pounds are skins, and are not dutiable. He contended that hides less than twenty-five pounds in weight should be treated in the same manner as were hides above that weight. His amendment was lost, 31 yeas to 33 noes.

Senator Stone then offered an amendment placing hides, leather, boots, shoes, harness, saddles, and belting on the free list. This was also rejected by a vote of 26 yeas to 48 noes. Mr. Stone gave notice that he would renew the amendment in the Senate.

Free Boots and Shoes Urged.
The third amendment was by Mr. McLaurin, who proposed to admit free of duty boots and shoes, but it was voted down without a roll call.

Senator Cummins then attempted to reduce the duty proposed in the Finance Committee's amendment from 15 per cent to 10 per cent. This amendment was voted down without a roll call.

On the final vote on the adoption of the committee amendment restoring the Dingley rate of 15 per cent on hides, the vote was as follows:

YEAS.
Republicans—Aldrich, Borah, Bradley, Brandegee, Brewster, Brown, Burton, Clapp, Cullum, Dick, Dixon, Doolittle, Ekins, Flint, Foster, Gallinger, Gamble, Guggenheim, Hale, Heyburn, Johnson, Jones, Lester, McCumber, Nix, Penrose, Piles, Seaton, Snook, Sutherland, Warner, Warren, and Wetmore. Democrats—Bailey, Culberson, Fletcher, Hughes, McHenry, Newlands, Smith, of Maryland, Stone, and Tamm. Total, 46.

NOES.
Republicans—Beveridge, Briggs, Burham, Burton, Burton, Clapp, Crane, Cullum, Dick, Dixon, Faye, La Follette, Lodge, Nelson, Page, Root, and Smith, of Michigan. Democrats—Bacon, Bankhead, Chamberlain, Clay, Daniel, Davis, Gore, Johnston, Martin, Overman, Owen, Payne, Shawley, and Tillman. Total, 30.

Split on Hide Vote.
The New England delegation split on the question of free hides.

Senator Hale, of Maine, voted for the 15 per cent duty, while his colleague, Senator Frye, voted against it. Mr. Gallinger, of New Hampshire, voted for the duty, while his colleague, Mr. Burham, of Vermont, voted for free hides, while his colleague, Mr. Dillingham, did not vote.

Senators Lodge and Crane, of Massachusetts, stood solidly for free hides. Senators Aldrich and Wetmore, of Rhode Island, favored the duty, as did also Senators Bulkeley and Brandegee, of Connecticut.

Senator Root, of New York, surprised the Senate by voting in favor of free hides. Mr. Dewey was absent.

Discuss Boots and Shoes.

Shortly before the final vote on the hide amendment, there was a short discussion of the boot and shoe paragraphs. Mr. Beveridge wanted to know what action will be taken by the Finance Committee with regard to boots and shoes. Mr. Aldrich replied that the committee was waiting to see what duty would be imposed upon the raw material before deciding the rates of duty upon the finished products.

Mr. Cummins said he had been advised informally that the committee would recommend the same rate of duty on boots and shoes as was imposed on hides, but Mr. Aldrich added that no protectionist could vote for such an arrangement.

Mr. Gore had read a letter from Mr. E. W. Douglas, of Massachusetts, saying that if he was given free hides and free leather, he would be willing to have boots and shoes on the free list.

Mr. Aldrich retorted that Mr. Douglas did not represent the opinion of the country, and had read a letter from the Boot and Shoe Manufacturers' Association protesting against a reduction of the duties on boots and shoes. Mr. Hale said he opposed a reduction of the duty on hides or on boots and shoes.

St. Louis Men Would Drop Duty.
Mr. Stone declared that the shoe manufacturers of Missouri would be willing to have shoes placed on the free list if they could get hides free, but Mr. Aldrich said that some of the St. Louis boot and shoe manufacturers were interested in cattle raising in Mexico.

Senators Bailey and Stone explained that they would favor free hides provided boots and shoes and other manufactures of hides were also admitted free of duty. After the hide amendment had been adopted, Senator Aldrich announced that the Finance Committee would immediately begin consideration of the proposed rate of duty on leather.

He also offered in behalf of the committee.

UNIVERSITY DEFIES PASTORS

Baptist Ministers Challenged by Faculty of Big Chicago School.

Fellow Professors Defend Prof. Foster, and Refuse to Accept Dictation from Outside.

Chicago, June 22.—Members of the Baptist Ministers' Conference who voted for the expulsion of Prof. George Foster, from their organization and planned to carry their fight against him into the University of Chicago, were challenged today by a dozen or more members of the university faculty who defended their fellow professor and ridiculed the ministers.

The professors declared the president and trustees would take no action against Prof. Foster, as they esteemed him too highly, and would ignore any action of the ministers' conference. In short, they defied Rev. Johnston Myers, Nemesia of Prof. Foster, and his aides in the fight against Prof. Foster to do their worst.

The meeting in which Prof. Foster was expelled because of his religious opinion in published books, which aroused the professors as a "lamentable absurd proceeding," which they refused to accept in a serious light. They declared that Prof. Foster's standing in the university was heightened by the occurrence, and his character and manner regarded more highly than ever because of his attitude throughout the affair.

It was pointed out that the University of Chicago is not an annex of a Baptist Sunday school, but "a university with a broad, conservative system of teaching in all its departments," and that it "cannot be dictated to by any Baptist organization or Baptist minister."

BUTTON DAY A SUCCESS.

Expected that More Than $12,000 Will Be Realized.

While all the returns from Button Day are not in, it was stated at headquarters yesterday that the enterprise had met with more liberal response from the general public.

Arthur C. Moses, vice president of the Washington Playgrounds' Association, said last night that all the reports of sales of buttons would be in before noon today, and that it would take some time to tabulate the receipts. He was of the opinion that the total would be made public this afternoon.

Indications were that the receipts would probably reach $12,000. Up to noon there had been received in cash more than $3,000.

Cuno H. Rudolph, one of the leading figures in the movement, said yesterday: "While it is impossible to tell this morning how much we have raised, I feel sure we will get more than the $3,000 figure registered in favor of Tag Day last year. Just how far we will surpass the figures I cannot say, but I am prepared to state, but I can say that we are highly satisfied at the results of yesterday's work, and are extremely grateful to the people of Washington for the support they gave us."

CARTER CASE REVIVED.

Supreme Court Considers Appeal from Federal Court.

The case of Oberlin Carter, a captain in the army, who was dismissed and served a term in the Leavenworth prison for participation in frauds in river and harbor contracts at Savannah, Ga., came before the Supreme Court yesterday for the fourth time, when the government filed an appeal from the refusal of the Federal court at Chicago to apply to the sum embezzled certain stock belonging to Carter that had been attached in that city.

Green and Gaynor, New York contractors, were also indicted for participation in the frauds, and after a legal battle lasting several years were extradited from Canada, whence they fled, the proceedings being carried finally to the Privy Council in England before the government obtained possession of the men.

COXEY'S MISSION FAILS.

Common Weal Army Leader Has Made Fortune of Mine.

Gen. Jacob S. Coxey, who led the ragged army of the common weal in Washington under President Cleveland's administration, and was chased off the grass in the Capitol grounds, has a new grievance against the government. The Senate yesterday refused to place a duty on the output of Gen. Coxey's arsenic mine near Stearns, Va.

Since the common weal army disbanded, Gen. Coxey has prospered in mining, and has acquired a fair competence. In the list of his successful commercial ventures is the arsenic mine in Virginia.

SUGAR TRUST WITNESS HEARD

Adolph Segal, Capitalist, Gives Sensational Testimony.

Records in Suit Show that Directors Gave Full Power to Loan Money to Rival.

New York, June 22.—Adolph Segal, the Philadelphia capitalist who obtained the loan of $1,250,000 from the sugar trust for the Pennsylvania Sugar Refining Company was a witness before the Federal grand jury today for over two hours. It was said that he had given testimony described as "sensational."

Mr. Segal appeared with his lawyer. The latter was also examined by the grand jury for a short time, as was also T. Sufferer Talley.

Mr. Talley's appearance caused some surprise and his connection with the case was not made plain. The records in the suit of the Pennsylvania company show that the directors of the company voted to give President Hameyer and John E. Parsons full power in the matter of the loan to the Pennsylvania company which it is alleged the way the American Sugar Refining Company had of putting its rival out of business.

Under the Sherman law it is possible to bring indictments against individuals, as was done in the naval stores case at Savannah. In this case not only were the individuals fined but prison sentences were imposed, the charge being in such cases that the defendants engaged in a conspiracy to destroy a competitor. The penalty provides a fine of $5,000, one year in jail or both.

The trial of Oliver Spitzer, formerly department superintendent of the Williamsburg refineries and the six checkers arrested for the frauds in weighing sugar there, has been postponed until the October term.

CONFESSES ON STAND.

West Virginian Admits Murder of His Brother-in-law.

Parkersburg, W. Va., June 22.—A sensation was created at Middlebourne late this afternoon when John Holpp, on trial for the murder of William Roberts, broke down on the witness stand and confessed to the murder. The trial had proceeded for nearly a week, and Holpp had taken the stand in his own defense.

Roberts and Holpp were brothers-in-law. Last winter Roberts disappeared from his home in Tyler County. His body was later found weighted down in an old abandoned oil tank. Holpp, who had frequently quarreled with the murdered man, had been there and had threatened him, was arrested shortly afterward.

WILL REFURNISH CHURCH.

Metropolitan M. E. Church Will Spend $3,000 on Improvements.

At the quarterly meeting of the executive officers of Metropolitan Methodist Episcopal church last night in the Epworth League rooms, which was held to spend this summer more than $3,000 on improvements.

A portion of this amount will be used to refurnish the rooms with new carpets, furniture, and cushions, and to install an electric light system to replace the present gas lights.

These improvements will not be begun until Rev. and Mrs. J. Reid Shannon leave on their annual vacation, the first week of August.

It was announced that Bishop Bristol, former pastor of the Metropolitan church, had sailed from South America, where he has served for several years as the head of the Methodist Episcopal church for this country, and that he would arrive in New York July 5. Bishop Bristol will visit Washington before returning to South America.

ANOTHER DISMISSAL

RUMORED AT G. W. U.

Member Medical School Faculty Said to Be Slated.

SUPPORTER OF DR. PHILLIPS

Old Graduates Will Hold Conference to Discuss Financial Principles, but Plans Are Under Way to Determine the Weight of the Anti-Administration Men—Call Issued.

Another professor of the faculty of the medical school of George Washington University will shortly be dismissed from his chair, according to reports which circulated in scholastic circles last night. He is said to be one of the young and popular teachers, who is suspected of throwing his influence in favor of Dr. W. F. R. Phillips, former dean of the school. The determination to dismiss him from the faculty is said to have been taken at a recent meeting of the board of trustees. No official notice of the change has been given.

It is said the proposed removal will be discussed at the meeting of the alumni to be held at the New Willard Hotel to-morrow night. Financial matters will, however, largely occupy the attention of this conference, which will furnish an excellent test as to the strength of the administration and the anti-Needham forces among the graduates.

The alumni have no official status in the management of the university, but the influence they exert is a force to be reckoned with. Neither faction knows apparently just how strong it is, although the anti-administration element is confident the great majority of graduates is in sympathy with it.

Large Attendance Expected.
It is believed the attendance at to-morrow night's meeting will be confined to those who are opposed to the Needham policies.

The circumstances attending the "open call" issued Monday night are peculiar. It has been pointed out that it does not bear any official sanction; that the alumni association, when a petition for the meeting was presented to it ten days ago, rejected the request.

E. C. Bradenburgh, president of the alumni association, is authority for the statement that the executive committee declined to authorize the call. But the determined spirits who were bent on holding this conference were not to be balked in this manner, and the open call was the result.

A. J. Worthington will preside at the meeting. It is said, and J. J. Darlington deliver the principal address.

Will Discuss Finances.
It will deal with the financial condition of the institution. It is said by some alumni that the actual situation in this respect is far worse than has been hinted at, and that the truth has not been half told. Some graduates say the unwarranted expansion instituted by President Needham has eaten up endowment funds at an alarming rate.

"It is quite possible," said an alumnus yesterday allied with the anti-Needham faction, "that the call for this meeting may simply harden the board of trustees in its support of Dr. Needham. They have stood by him now through a good many hard attacks, and to remain consistent, it is possible that they will refuse to be influenced by any statements made at this conference. But the alumni can hardly be ignored, and I am positive that a majority of graduates, especially those who have gained some prominence in Washington life, will side with us."

It is known that some members of the faculty as well as alumni are giving hard study to the financial statements of the university in preparation for the meeting, and it is probable some interesting facts will be divulged.

WOMAN CRIED MURDER.

Police Answered Call but Couldn't Locate Her.

Cries of "Murder! Murder!" in a woman's voice coming from lonely attics opposite fish wharves in Water street southwest at about 10 o'clock Monday night last were heard by several loungers along the water front.

Lieut. Sutton, in command of the harbor precinct, was notified, and a rowboat was started for the scene. Persons who informed the police said that the woman cried "Help!" several times, and then cried "Murder!" The cries seemed to be near the sea wall around the flats, and were heard distinctly in the still night air.

Lieut. Flatters, accompanied by Policemen Stang and Spicer, rowed across the river and landed. For two hours they searched the heavy underbrush, and groped about in the darkness. They called, so that any one in needs of assistance would know that help was at hand, but no answer was heard.

Shortly after midnight the party returned to the harbor office, and reported the search unsuccessful. The police investigated the strange incident yesterday, but were unable to learn anything which might lead to the identity of the woman.
